Object ID	VM1993.001.003
Scope & Content	Series 3: The Outing Committee of the Multnomah Athletic Club sponsored hiking and climbing trips for its members. Rodney Glisan participated as a leader on some of these events. As many as 30 people participated on these hikes. They usually travelled by train to the vicinity of the trailhead, and then took motor coaches or private cars for the remainder of the way. Of the four hikes that are recorded Mount Saint Helens was the first climb undertaken by the Club. On the Beacon Rock hike Lower Hardy Falls on the nearby Hamilton Mountain trail were rechristened Rodney Falls in honor of the "mountaineer" Rodney Glisan. Trips included Mount Saint Helens Climb, July 4 and 5, 1915; Table Mountain Hike, November 14, 1915; Mount Adams Climb, July 1, 1916; and Beacon Rock Hike, November 4, 1917.

Glisan, Rodney L. Collection

Object ID	VM1993.001
Scope & Content	The collection documents mountain climbing outings, hiking trips, and skiing and snowshoeing trips that Glisan took with the Mazamas and other mountaineering and athletic organizations, as well as personal trips he took on his own and with friends. The collection is organized into eight series: <ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Mazamas Trips2. Alpine Club of Canada Trips3. Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club Trips4. Seattle Mountaineers Trips5. Sierra Club Trips6. Snowshoe Club Trips7. Personal Trips8. Other Photographers and Trips Glisan made and printed most of the photographs in the first seven series, although he occasionally included images by others. (These instances are noted in the Container List notes.) He had a good eye and often composed his photographs well. He did his own darkroom work, and the quality of his prints varies from sharp and clear to muddy. Unfortunately, the fate of his negative collection is unknown. Glisan's detailed hour-by-hour and day-by-day journals of most of the trips enhances the documentary value of the photographs. The collection documents mountain country and mountaineering in some detail from the late 19th through the early 20th centuries in the Northwest, California, and British Columbia. It includes images of people who played important roles in Northwest mountaineering and conservation, including Ansel Adams, M.W. Gorman, Edmond S. Meany, and John Muir. In addition to climbers and hikers, the photographs also show guides, packers, and camp cooks. Among other professional and amateur photographers whose work is represented in the collection are: A.H. Derman, Garda Fogg, J.P. Ford, Alfred Foy, Walter L. Huber, Frank A. Jacobs, Frank I. Jones, Fred Kiser and Kiser Studio photographers, Merl LaVoy of Seattle who accompanied Parker and Brown on their third attempt to climb Mt. McKinley, E.H. Loomis, L. Lovejoy, A.M. Marshall, P.M. McGregor, Fred McNeil of the Oregon Journal, L.A. Nelson, Lulie Nettleton, Agnes Streeter, Aubrey Watzek, and George Weister.

Object ID	VM1993.001.001
Scope & Content	Series 1: Mazamas outings and other trips included both hiking and climbing opportunities. Each annual two-week outing was headquartered at a base camp, which provided a commissary staffed by a camp cook. From base camp, the participants hiked and climbed. Evening campfires featured scientific lectures and a variety of entertainment. The Mazamas also sponsored a program of Local Walks, which were day hikes to various locations in the Portland vicinity, often in the Columbia River Gorge. In addition to Outings and Local Walks, this series covers a 1911 trip that Glisan made to Hawaii, representing the Mazamas and the Sierra Club at the Pan-Pacific Congress of Mountain Clubs. It also includes climbs made in the 1920s as a member of the Mazamas Research Committee, which was studying Mount Hood glaciers. The outings and trips represented in this series are arranged chronologically: 1903, Three Sisters; 1904, Mt. Shasta; 1905, Mt. Rainier; 1906, Mt. Baker; 1907, Mt. Jefferson; 1908, Mt. St. Helens; 1911, Glacier Peak; 1911, Hawaii; 1913 (February), Celilo Falls; 1913 (May), Oregon Caves; 1914, Rainier, north side; 1915, Mt. St. Helens; 1916, Three Sisters; 1916, Oneonta Gorge; 1917, Biddle Butte; 1917, Silver Star Mountain; 1917, Greenleaf Peak; 1921, Mt. Hood South Side climb, 1921, Mt. Hood, south side (Research Committee); 1924, Mt. Hood, investigation of new glacier; 1925, Paradise Trail. Photographs of Summit Registers (boxes) appear in box 1, f. 14, Mount Shasta; box 1, f.15, South Sister (appears to be summit box). Some of the notable members represented in the photographs include the following: Hawkins, Leander L. (box 1, f.3); Sholes, Charles H. (box 1, f.19); Proudly, H.H (box 1, f.7); Gorman, Martin W. (box 1, f.3; box 14, f.2, Box 19, f.26)

Scope & Content	Series two: In 1907 the Alpine Club of Canada invited a representative of The Mazamas to attend a summer meeting at a club camp in Paradise Valley located in the Canadian Rockies near Banff, Alberta. Rodney L. Glisan attended as the Mazama representative. This series covers the period July 4-11, 1907 during which Glisan participated in a two-day expedition to Lake O'Hara. The expedition was a circuit hiking trip going west from Paradise Valley up and over Mitre and Abbot Passes to Lake O'Hara where the party spent the night at a temporary Alpine Club camp. The first day's trip involved travel over snow fields, glaciers and rocky slopes. The second day the party headed south up to and over Opabin Pass and on southeast to Wenkchemna Pass. From Wenkchemna Pass the party entered the Valley of Ten Peaks and thence returned to the camp at Paradise Valley. In addition to pictures taken while on the expedition to Lake O'Hara this series includes pictures taken from the train approaching Lake Louise.

Scope & Content	Series 4: The Seattle Mountaineers club sponsored many outings. Rodney Glisan participated in several of these events during the first part of the 20th Century which he chronicled with his photographs and itineraries. Most participants were from Seattle, Everett and Tacoma with a few from Portland and other cities. Groups of 100 or more participants were not unusual. The outings were well organized including professional packers, group meals, evening entertainment, church services on Sunday and local transportation arrangements. The Northwest summer outings: Olympics, 1913; Circuit of Mount Rainier, 1924, 1930; Garibaldi Park, 1931 were scheduled usually for three weeks in August. Winter outings at Mount Rainier in 1915, 1916, 1917 occurred over New Years Holidays. Group sizes of 80 - 100 members were typical.

Scope & Content	Series 5: During the summer months the Sierra Club held outings in the Sierras. Glisan joined participants from other cities on the month long outings. They would arrive by train to Los Angeles or San Francisco and transfer to stage for the trip to the starting point.. As many as 200 participants would join these trips. The meals were catered, and the evening bon fires included music entertainment and group singing, and church services were held on Sundays. Participants frequently supplemented the served fare with freshly caught trout. The campsites moved around as the trip progressed. Optional side trips climbing peaks and visiting sights were offered. Glisan greatly enjoyed these

"knapsack trips."

Two highlights can be found in Glisan's writings which accompany the photographs. One of the outings was a trans-Sierra trip. After visiting Hetch Hetchy Canyon Glisan lamented in his manuscript the San Francisco project to convert its use to a water reservoir. On his way home to Portland after the 1932 High Seirra Trip Glisan visited the 1932 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

Sierra Club Trips Yosemite, 1909; Kings River, 1910; Kern River, 1912; High Sierra, 1932; and Paiute Pass to Bishop Pass, 1933 are included. Photographs, itineraries, maps, participant lists, Sierra Club Announcements, Olympic Game memoriabilia and trip summaries are among the materials. Photographs of John Muir, Henry Pittock, and Ansel Adams are in the Series.

Scope & Content	Series 6 documents Snowshoe Club trips to their clubhouse near Cloud Cap Inn on the east side of Mount Hood. Activities shown include snowshoeing, tobogganing, and skiing. The winter outings lasting several days required a train trip from Portland to Parkdale, a horse-drawn wagon or sleigh ride to the upper reaches of Hood River Valley, followed by a snowshoe trek in deep snow up to Cloud Cap Inn. The party was comprised of up to a dozen men accompanied by a cook. Before completion of the Snowshoe Clubhouse in 1910, the party stayed overnight at Cloud Cap Inn. In addition to Cloud Cap Inn and later the Snowshoe Clubhouse, the Ladd Cottage and a trapper's cabin were located at Cloud Cap. Members' indoor leisure activities shown include card games, fireside sitting, and meals. The exclusive and private Snowshoe Club continues in operation today and maintains its clubhouse next to Cloud Cap Inn. All of the photographs except one are from album pages. One oversize image documents a snowshoe trip to Cloud Cap Inn but is undated. In addition to the numerous winter trips made in December, January or February, automobile trips by Glisan with others in July 1906 to Mt. Hood and along the Columbia Highway in April 1919 are included. A photo by Allen D. Chamberlain of "180 Climbing Mt. Washington, sic., New Hampshire, in Winter." is included. The trips in this series are arranged chronologically: 1905-1908; 1910-1915; 1919-1921.
